Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 15 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Variable cloud overnight. Mostly dry with sunny spells tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry this evening with late sunny spells. Staying largely dry overnight with variable amounts of cloud and some clear spells. Under clear skies patchy mist and fog will develop by dawn on Thursday. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Thursday:
Dry and largely sunny after any early mist or fog has cleared. Breezy along western coasts, with a slim chance of light afternoon shower. Feeling warm in the sunshine. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Widespread, heavy rain moves across western parts on Friday morning, then into the rest of the region later, becoming lighter as it reaches Wiltshire and Gloucestershire. Showers throughout the weekend.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.